

Figure 1. Schematic diagram of the experimental design. Behavioral data and neural data were collected from subjects performing a working memory task. Behavioral data were used to fit a behavioral model, and neural data were used to fit a neural model. The behavioral model fit and neural model fit were then compared to the behavioral model fit + neural model fit.